SAC Roderick Beverly:

This letter is probably somewhat different than what you normally receive. It seems that most of the time we take our coworkers for granted by just simply expecting them to do the job for which they were hired. However, you have one special agent that has brought more to her job. Special Agent Tracy Baldwin has taken a responsibility that probably not a lot of agents would care to deal with in their career. She has brought a overwhelming level of enthusiasm, commitment, and organization to the non-paid internship program of the Houston Field Office. The internship coordinators before her did an exceptional job but she has certainly made everyone around her more excited and supportive of the program.

People sometimes forget that this type of program introduces the college student to the relationship between theory and practice and helps to better direct their career choice. We, at Sam Houston State University, College of Criminal Justice, hold this to be a top priority for our students. Tracy has projected this same philosophy in her effort to organize and implement the program in your office. When I think of words to describe her they come rather easily: professional, dedicated, organized, efficient, and a very pleasant personality. Again, I just wanted to take the time to point out someone making an extraordinary effort.

Sincerely,

James A. Barrum, Ed.D.
Coordinator of Internship Program
